

RIGHT TURN LANE

Jones Bridge and McGinnis Ferry roads

PROJECT OVERVIEW

The project includes adding 700 feet to a northbound, right-turn lane from Jones Bridge Road onto eastbound McGinnis Ferry Road.

PROJECT TIMELINE

Johns Creek City Council approved the project in 2015.

Construction is scheduled to begin in September 2015 and is expected to take about three months.

KEY POINTS

- Addresses problem point for motorists in the northern part of town.
- Addition of 1,000 feet of transition lane on McGinnis Ferry Road to allow motorists time to merge into the flow of traffic.
- Project is coordinated with Forsyth County, which is planning to widen Brookwood Road (which becomes Jones Bridge Road in Johns Creek) and McGinnis Ferry Road from just north of Sargent Road to Ga. 400, where the Georgia Department of Transportation will install a new interchange.
